Vincent van Gogh: Letters to my Friends

2015 marks the 125th anniversary of the death of Vincent van Gogh, an artist of genius barely known in his own lifetime but now immensely popular. Reproductions of his work are best-sellers worldwide. This slide-illustrated talk will explore a particular aspect of his life: his great capacity for friendship. Friends included an innkeeper and a postman as well as artists, and of course, Theo, his best friend and younger brother. Vincent's letters reveal his feelings, struggles and abiding compassion for others. They also provide a crucial insight into his art.

The Arts Society is delighted once again to welcome back the former Deputy Head of the College.
